

Happy 1st Birthday to our Clinical Services Building

Campbelltown Hospital's world-class Clinical Services Building is celebrating its first birthday after an incredible 12 months of progress and achievement.

Since the commissioning of the 12-storey hospital tower in June last year, staff have performed more than 13,290 surgical procedures and delivered 3408 babies. There were 84,850 Emergency Department presentations.

Camden and Campbelltown Hospitals General Manager Grant Isedale congratulated all staff on the historical milestone.

"What a wonderful achievement for everyone - our state-of-the-art new hospital has turned one," Mr Isedale said.

"I am so proud of our staff for their outstanding work over the past year, both during the commissioning and settling into our new building.

"I thank everyone for their excellent work and dedication and I look forward to our contemporary new facilities serving our community for many years to come."

The building houses an expanded Emergency Department and a range of key services, including state-of-the-art operating theatres, enhanced Intensive Care Unit, expanded women's and children's services and centrally located mental health services. Dedicated mental health units are providing short stay, acute and intensive care for adolescents to older adults.

Mr Isedale thanked and congratulated the project team leading the redevelopment.

"It has been wonderful to see this amazing project take shape into a stunning modern facility, providing high-quality care to the people of Macarthur close to home," he said.

Set for completion by late 2023, the $632 million Stage 2 redevelopment is now in the process of removing old building C in preparation for the construction of a second, northern entrance for Campbelltown Hospital.

International accolades for pioneering design work

Our $632 million Stage 2 Campbelltown Hospital redevelopment has received international recognition!

Billard Leece Partnership was honoured with the top accolades for Mental Health Design and Interior Design and The Arts at the European Healthcare Awards.

The Campbelltown Hospital Redevelopment was celebrated for its visionary design and patient-centric spaces, integrating six-storeys of mental health services with thoughtful incorporation of art as a healing environment.

“We believe that healthcare environments plays a crucial role in supporting patient recovery and resilience,”
Director of Operations Mental Health Jennifer Glass said.

“This recognition highlights our dedication to creating safe, supportive spaces that foster healing and long-term wellbeing.”

Camden and Campbelltown Hospital General Manager Grant Isedale said he was delighted the hospital’s fantastic design features had received international recognition.

New entrance works underway

The new northern entrance to Campbelltown Hospital is a step closer with the gradual removal of the former Building C.

Although clearing of the inside of the building is well underway, the first visible signs of the demolition have come into view with the installation of safety scaffolding around the perimeter of the site by works contractor, MOITS.

In a carefully planned and controlled process, the empty building will be disassembled and broken down from the inside out over the next two months.

Constructed in the early 1980s, the building's structure is predominantly made up of concrete panels joined together with sealant. With the weight of a panel varying anywhere from 8.5 tons to 11 tons each panel will be individually investigated to determine the best approach for its removal.

All reusable materials will be collected and recycled following demolition.

Camden and Campbelltown Hospital General Manager Grant Isedale said the new northern entrance would offer convenience and greater accessibility for the community.

National finalists for Project of the Year!

Campbelltown Hospital was proud to be selected as a finalist for Project of the Year at this year's National Infrastructure Awards. Hosted by Infrastructure Partnerships Australia, the National Awards recognise and celebrate excellence in project delivery and individual achievement across the infrastructure sector.

Nominated for the Clinical Services Building delivered in Stage 2 of the Campbelltown Hospital Redevelopment, the recognition of the project on a national stage as a finalist for Project of the Year is an incredible achievement and a testament to the redevelopment team, and all of the staff, patients visitors and family who contributed to delivering a state-of-the-art hospital that puts patients and staff at the centre of everything we do.
